

iHorizons announces large expansion

DOHA: iHorizons, the leading provider of Internet software and eBusiness solutions in the Arab world, has confirmed that its business in 2009 has seen significant growth at all levels, along with several expansions, most notably the expansion of iHorizons in Saudi Arabia through the opening of a new branch office in Riyadh, and the opening of two new offices at Qatar Science and Technology Park (QSTP) and Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST).

iHorizons held a management retreat at the Intercontinental Hotel Doha to discuss strategy development for the coming years. Also the management discussed at the meeting the business plan for the three coming years, particularly in the areas of research and development as well as expansions and income growth.

Jassim Al Mansoori (pictured), iHorizons Chairman said: "We aim to continue to hold our leading position among IT companies in the region through developing local capabilities and competencies, and investing in research and development. Our company is making continuous efforts to promote the development of eBusiness applications and software solutions, and we believe that our new office at QSTP will help achieve our vision of creating applications in new markets such as Arabic language technologies, wireless software applications and knowledge collaboration tools. Mansoori also added that the company has achieved record revenues in 2009".

On the other hand, the CEO of iHorizons, Mohamad Takriti said: "iHorizons is ready to start the year 2010 with a strategic plan, bringing a number of services in new areas suitable to small and medium enterprises, based on the new Cloud Computing model.
